

for listed property owners Friday 26th March 2010

We all know that listed buildings require materials and repair techniques different to those of modern structures. It is not just that owners and builders may be committing a criminal offence if they don't, they may be causing major long term damage to the property.

In an effort to help people avoid common pitfalls, Mike Wye & Associates Ltd have joined forces with the Listed Property Owners Club to offer free guidance in a series of lectures during Friday 26th March.

The day covers important topics such as:

insurance,

the use of lime,

understanding dampness,

natural paints, insulation,

VAT

planning.

Each listed property owner will receive a free and comprehensive information pack at the end of the day.

Although the presentations are free of charge, refreshments and a lunch is supplied and this is charged at cost of £8 payable in advance.
