

As a result of recent growth, environmental instrumentation company Quantitech Limited of Milton Keynes, has added a further engineer to the company's service team. Phillip Grant has 11 years of experience as an aerospace engineer, in addition to two years of experience as a field service engineer in the calibration and maintenance of gas monitoring equipment.

Commenting on the need to expand Quantitech's service team, Technical Director Jim Monaghan said "The volume of service contracts that we deliver has grown considerably recently so we have made further investments in our resources for technical advice, installation, service, calibration and maintenance. The addition of someone with Philip's experience will further enhance our service capability and we are delighted to welcome him to the team."
