

FutureBuild 2014 is coming to Sheffield City Hall, UK, on 5th-6th November! This exciting new conference focusses on the sustainability of housing, renewable energy and community energy schemes.

Read more >>

Sustaining Europe

With the EU promising in 2007 to cut carbon emissions by 20% before 2020, this conference will explore how focusing on the sustainability of housing can help the UK, and other countries within the EU, meet their targets.

The conference, in partnership with REGREEN, is set to attract hundreds of relevant stakeholders that work within the built environment, including local, national & European visitors. Visitors will include academic, industrial and political stakeholders as well as community-based visitors, banks and specialist accountants. FutureBuild 2014 is being supported by the University of Sheffield who will explore the usefulness of renewable technology in achieving local community objectives.

Dedicated to greening the building sector through the enhancement of energy efficiency and the use of renewable energies, this unmissable event is ideal for anyone with an academic, industrial or political interest in this sector.

Read more >>

Fantastic FutureBuild Features

Keynote addresses from top politicians, sustainable energy industry specialists and business entrepreneurs

A range of sessions exploring the legal, political, practical and financial issues affecting the landscape for delivering sustainable housing, renewable energy and community energy schemes

A political debate involving key politicians, European representatives, industry specialists and journalists

Fantastic networking opportunities for all attendees

A spectacular Gala Dinner in the Cutlers Hall, with an address from Lord Digby Jones

Read more >>

Click here to book your early bird discounted place