

Not to be outdone by the success of the government's car and boiler scrappage schemes, Casella CEL is proud to announce the return of its own extremely popular new-for-old replacement scheme for monitoring instruments.

The company is urging health and safety professionals to trade in their old monitoring devices from any manufacturer, in whatever condition. In return, they will receive a discount of up to 30% on new replacements of all Casella monitoring technology, including sound level meters, dust monitors and air sampling pumps.

These offers are for a limited time only (24th December 2010), so if users are thinking about upgrading any of their old monitoring equipment but don't have generous budgets, now is the time.
