

To Free Professional Services Consultations

The construction sector is being given the unique opportunity to sign up for free one-on-one consultancy sessions with industry leading professional services providers at the upcoming RWM in partnership with CIWM exhibition (Tuesday 13 to Thursday 15 September).

Visitors to the show, which is free to attend, can gain access to expert advice ranging from legal issues to getting the most out of energy from waste. The free consultations are part of the Professional Services Clinic which is new to the exhibition for 2011.

Visitors can speak to the legal experts at Nabarro, a major commercial law firm with a national reputation for the strength and depth of its work in the waste and resource management sector, and get advice and legal solutions for their businesses.

With an increasing focus on sustainable energy, businesses in the construction sector can also speak to representatives from renewable energy experts KEMA about getting the most out of energy from waste.

Appointments are extremely limited and are booking up fast so visitors are urged to register for free and make an appointment early.

RWM in partnership with CIWM is the UK's biggest event for organisations from all sectors with an interest in waste and recycling. Formed late last year from the merger of the successful Recycling and Waste Management Exhibition (RWM) and the Chartered Institution of Wastes Management's (CIWM) Futuresource show, it will feature more than 600 exhibitors.

Designed to inform, improve and inspire organisations, it covers all areas of waste and recycling, from the full range of waste treatment and recycling technologies to the latest waste prevention solutions. And from vehicles and equipment to practical advice on how effective waste management can deliver a range of business benefits.

You can register to visit RWM in partnership with CIWM for free by visiting www.rwmexhibition.com/pr and make an appointment by clicking on 'Professional Services Clinic' in the 'Visit' tab.
